John Morgan on Horse Stealing.
The following, which has a conspicuous place in the Vidette, is decidedly rich, under the circumstances:

HORSE STEALING.—Various complaints having been made of horses being taken or exchanged by persons professing to belong to the army, it is stated that in every such instance it has not only been done without authority, but also in violation of the most positive orders. Even in the enemy's country a soldier is allowed to press or exchange a horse without first getting the written consent of his Captain, who is required to examine into the necessity for it, and this permission is to be countersigned by the Colonel of the regiment, and approved by myself or my Adjutant General. Immediately on arriving in a loyal country, the most positive orders were issued that under no circumstances would even an exchange be allowed except in the presence of a commissioned officer, and with the consent of the opposite party. All persons who have been suffered are invited to call on me at my headquarters, and reclaim their property, and assist in bringing to justice those men in the garb of soldiers who make a disgrace to any service.

JOHN H. MORGAN,
Colonel Commanding Cavalry Brigade.

REPORTED RESURRECTION OF JNO. C. COLE.
A rumor has reached here, all the way from Hartford, Conn., to the effect that at the death of the late Colonel Samuel Cole, among those family friends who bade him farewell, was John C. Cole, whose connection with the murder of Adams, in this city, many years ago, furnished material for one of the causes celebres of America. There are not wanting many believers in the theory that John C. Cole never committed suicide in our city prison, but that he escaped and hid behind him the body of another man who was murdered and buried in place of him. He has since been supposed to have taken up his abode in Texas, and his reported reappearance in Hartford on the occasion referred to has made some excitement in our city. The story goes so far as to state that Judge Cole, another brother, was suddenly brought into contact with the supposed resurrector, and that the latter, in a convulsion, and fell to the ground, injuring himself severely. All this may be mere rumor, but, as one of those who have always doubted Cole's suicide, the story serves to feed my curiosity in the opposite direction.—N. Y. Cor. Boston Post.

HOLLY SPRINGS.—General Grant yesterday occupied Holly Springs. The Federal pickets advanced to the edge of the Atkin's mill, on the Charlotte river, four miles south of the Springs, the rebel pickets were driven in and one hundred prisoners captured, including several officers. When our latest news was dispatched, the rebels were retreating. Our army will pursue briskly. This is the programme. The fact that the rebels retreated from Holly Springs without a battle may be regarded as evidence that their force is not as large as had been represented. Advice of the 8th stated that Price had been re-enforced by Pemberton, from the South, but even then was not willing to make a stand. General Grant has a formidable and excellent army—large enough to overthrow the rebels. Whether he will get them "against the wall" is a question; but he will certainly sweep through the country, carrying out the plan of this particular campaign, which is an important one, and will bring forth fruits with which the country will be satisfied.—Memphis Bulletin, 18th.

THE WAR IN LOUISIANA.—The United States steamer De Soto arrived at Philadelphia on Tuesday, from Baton Rouge, having left New Orleans on the 6th. She brings five days late intelligence. A letter says:

The river was entirely clear of rebel vessels to Baton Rouge, though both banks are still infested by bands of guerrillas. A descending column of our troops, from Baton Rouge, while running the bend at Manchaca, the gambusia truck and Sciota, in company with the De Soto, received from one of these bands two volleys of musketry. Gen. Weitzel's expedition from Donaldsonville towards Berwick Bay, co-operating with a naval force, has been entirely successful. Gen. Weitzel had on three occasions met the enemy, and always beaten them. The splendid crops of cane on the river are rotting in the ground. The few planters who have force left to gather their crops dare not do so, as the attempt to grind the cane is speedily followed by the confederations of their mills and other property. The whole region is rapidly becoming a wilderness, in which, ten years hence, the negro will roam as ignorant and as savage as were his ancestors in the wilds of the Congo.

MR. THURLOW WEEB'S MISSION TO EUROPE.—A New York letter dated the 18th inst. to the Philadelphia Inquirer says:

It is a well-ascertained fact now that Mr. Thurlow Weeb is going to Europe on some sort of a government mission, all the way to the contrary notwithstanding. He will probably start on his mission in December. The particular nature of his errand is of course a profound secret to everybody but himself and the government, but there is good reason to believe that he is especially instructed to keep an eye on the English ship-building and report with vessels are in preparation for the rebels. He will also be authorized to go as far as St. Petersburg, and confer with the Czar on matters of mutual national interest. These statements are entirely in the authority of Mr. Weeb himself.

THE MONITORS.—Orders have been sent to finish the turrets of the Monitors at once. The success of the late experiments having demonstrated the feasibility of arming them with 15-inch guns, they will be completed for service exactly like the Pasca. The latter vessel will have her new bow ready in a few days. Captain Ericsson, writing about the great iron-clad, says:

I have much satisfaction in assuring you that our success is complete; not a single difficulty remains to be overcome. We handle four hundred and twenty pound guns with as little discomfort and report with more facility, than Hull and Perry handled their forty-pounders.

NORTH CAROLINA IN THE NEXT CONGRESS. In regard to a Congressional election in the Old North State, we would say that we feel perfectly authorized to state that no warrant will be issued for such an election, unless a desire is manifested on the part of the good people of this State. This desire should be immediately made manifest, by circulating a simple petition to His Excellency, Gov. Stanley, praying him to order an election, circulating it among your neighbors, and immediately returning it to the Governor. If a respectable number is manifested in this manner an election will be ordered, and the good Old State of North Carolina will be represented in the Federal Congress, and exempted from the provision of the President's proclamation.—Newbern Freeman, Nov. 12.

"THE VOICES OF THE NIGHT."—"I couldn't get a wink of sleep," said a newly-blessed benedict, "on account of a disordered that kept playing all night." "Disordered?" inquired the confidant of his troubles. "What new instrument is that?" "Only the baby," was the yawning reply.—Punch.

General Nelson's splendid war-horse, ridden by him in the battle of Shiloh and Richmond, will be publicly sold to-day on Chesapeake. Who would like to own a horse that has stood the most gallant fire under such a rider as the fearless Nelson?—Los. Os. & Rep. Nov. 22d.
